

FEDERALS VICTORS AT VERA CRUZ

BATTLE OF PROXIES STARTED

FORCES OF STEWART MEET ROCKEFELLER VOTES AT WHITING

Odds Against Colonel
Stewart Is Claim;
Short Of Proxies

WHITING, Ind., March 7.—The broad-shouldered son of an Iowa blacksmith today challenged the son of the world's richest man for control of the billion-dollar Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Hours before the combatants entered the arena odds were running heavily against Col. Robert W. Stewart. It appears that nothing short of a miracle could save him from expulsion from the company directorate as demanded by John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Despite the inequalities of the contest, 2,500 stockholders and a corps of newspapermen, worthy of a championship prize fight, started early for the scene of battle, the Whiting Community Memorial which was built by Rockefeller funds.

Six years ago, before there was a Teapot Dome scandal and before Rockefeller raised the issue of "moral fitness" upon which he hopes to have Col. Stewart thrown out of his $125,000 a year job, John D. Jr., gave the oil tank town of Whiting $500,000 with which to build this memorial to the heroes of the World War.

Today the building is the locale of the most spectacular financial battle in history, with the people of Whiting—about 90 per cent of whose breadwinners are Standard Oil employees—turned against Rockefeller.

Stewart was reported to be approximately 1,000,000 proxies, or shares of Standard Oil stock, short of the number required to keep his place as chairman of the board of directors.

Wall Street and La Salle Street sent their keenest minds to the main street of Whiting, to support one or the other side. Col. Stewart came in person to direct his battle while Rockefeller sent his brother-in-law, Winthrop W. Aldrich, and a delegation of approximately 200 big eastern stockholders to see that his demand that Stewart be ousted is carried out.

Eligible to the meeting also were many of the men who work for wages in the Standard Oil refinery here. About one third of the 4,000 Whiting workers have invested in stock since Stewart deserted the role of country lawyer and worked himself up to the head of the billion-dollar concern. They have seen the company stock triple in value in ten years and they give full credit to Stewart. For that reason the employees are said to be 99.7 per cent for Stewart.

The battle of high finance runs back more than a year when Stewart became embroiled with the United States senate over his part in the mysterious Continental Trading Co. Ltd., of Canada, some of whose profits found their way to the Republican national committee. Stewart was called before a senate committee but declined to testify. He was indicted for defrauding the government.

Rockefeller called upon Stewart to resign on the grounds that his connection with the Continental had proved him to be "morally unfit" to head the oil concern in which the Rockefellers owned 15 per cent of the stock.

At the shareholders meeting a year ago Rockefeller refused to vote his stock for Stewart's reelection but Stewart was re-elected anyhow.

Then began the sensational campaign to force Stewart out by obtaining permission from a majority of the stockholders to vote their stock against the colonel.

HOOVER SUMMONS CONGRESS SESSION

WASHINGTON, March 7.—President Hoover formally summoned congress into extra session today, fixing April 15 as the date for convening.

The president, in his proclamation, the first he has issued made the call for the session to consider further agricultural relief and legislation for limited changes in the tariff.

While the president specified only farm relief and tariff revision, congress may take up whatever legislation it desires.

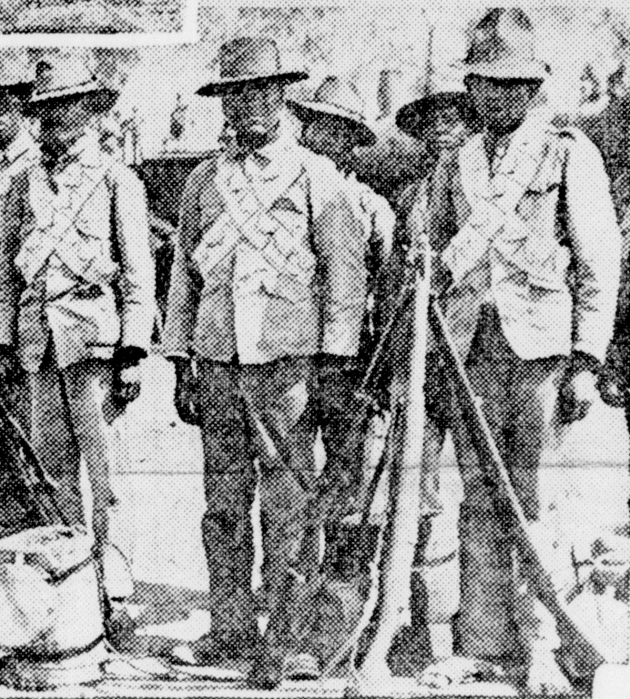

It is expected that Mr. Hoover will seek repeal of the national origins provision of the 1924 immigration act as well as transfer of prohibition enforcement machinery from the treasury to the justice department.

Vital border cities are reported in control of revolutionary forces in Mexico although vigorously denied by the Federal authorities. General Escobar, left, military leader of the rebel forces, is believed in power at Vera Cruz,

BOISTEROUS WINDS CHILL XENIANS BUT DAMAGE IS AVOIDED

Electric Service Worst
Hit; Firemen
Called

Boisterous winds blowing with near-cyclonic velocity Wednesday night caused no material property damage in Greene County.

The Dayton Power and Light Co. experienced the most serious trouble as far as could be ascertained. Scattered reports were received of poles being torn down.

The wind whipped the wires together, resulting in several transformers being burned out and temporarily shutting off electric service to a number of residents in the rural districts.

The company had crews working all night Wednesday doing repair work and E. H. Heathman, local manager, expected complete service would be restored by Thursday afternoon providing no further reports of a more serious nature are received.

The wind blew mightily in Xenia but the street lighting system functioned properly, nevertheless, Mr. Heathman said. Due to the high wind pedestrians found walking difficult and it was a common sight to see passersby chasing after hats.

Light wires dragging along the roof of the home of Elmer Middleton, W. Church St., caused a small fire at 8:15 p. m. Wednesday. Firemen responded to the fifteenth alarm of the year but they were not needed as no damage resulted. The property is owned by H. E. Schmidt.

Early Thursday morning no reports of even minor damage had been made to The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. although Harley Clear, local manager, considered it extremely likely that poles had been blown down in various parts of the county.

The windstorm was accompanied by a drop in temperature, adding a chill discomfort.

ACCUSE MINISTER

KENTON, March 7.—The Rev. R. A. Hoffman of Springfield, former county attendance officer here, was under arrest today on charges of issuing a bad check. He was said by police to have pleaded guilty and will be held to the grand jury.

PENCE LAW REPEALER TO PASS HOUSE SOON; COOPER WILL SIGN

COLUMBUS, O., March 7.—The bill repealing the Pence law governing collection of public utilities rates, came before the house of representatives today after hurrying one of its most serious obstacles, the house utilities committee.

Quick passage by the house is anticipated and Governor Myers V. Cooper has announced he will sign the measure as soon as it is presented to him.

The Pence law—at which the repealer is aimed—permits utilities to collect increased rates under bond before they are approved by the public utilities commission.

Consideration of the bill in committee last night demonstrated the strength of administration forces when the measure was shoved through over vigorous opposition.

The opposition proposed amendments which would permit utilities to increase rates, the utilities commission to impound the money until the increases had been approved or denied.

The amendments, in effect, would leave the present law unchanged.

The rates on intangible and tangible personal property would be fixed by the legislature. The amendment resolution required the approval of three-fifths of the members of the house and senate for adoption. It would then be submitted to the voters at the November, 1929, election for ratification or rejection.

Amendments similar to Hadden's in general character, have been defeated in past legislatures but advocates of the present resolution contend it has at least an even chance.

The only other measure of general interest on today's calendar in the house was only by Rep. H. E. Rowe, of Holmes County, to require hunters to wear license numbers between their shoulders, corresponding to the license plates used on automobiles.

The work of the house at yesterday's session was divided between "fur-bearing animal" bills and a measure to increase Cuyahoga County's quota of common pleas judges.

The "judge" bill, sponsored by Rep. Ernest J. Bohn, Cleveland, originally provided for the creation of six additional common pleas judgeships. To meet opposition from rural members, the number was reduced to three by an amendment offered by Rep. George M. Forney, Hancock County and agreed to by the advocates of the measure.

After prolonged debate, in which the opposition to the bill was led by Rep. Ray C. Carpenter, Seneca County, the measure finally was approved but with only three votes to spare.

The two "fur-bearing animal" bill virtually reverse laws enacted by the 1927 legislature.

One of the bills, introduced by Rep. Lloyd Weaver, Akron, makes the "open season" for skunk, fox, raccoon and opossum uniform throughout the state.

The other bill, by Rep. G. E. Sharp, Vinton County abolishes the present closed season on squirrels in odd years.

The secretary of war has approved the following rivers and harbors appropriations for Ohio:

Toledo Harbor, Ohio $65,000; Sandusky Harbor, Ohio $250,000; Huron Harbor, Ohio, $14,700; Lorain Harbor Ohio $5,000; Cleveland Harbor, Ohio, $80,000; Fairport Harbor, Ohio, $14,500; Ashtabula Harbor Ohio, $12,400; Conneaut Harbor, Ohio $4,000.

HOUSES CRUSHED UNDER AVALANCHE IN PORTUGAL

LISBON, March 7.—Relief parties were rushed today to the town of Sao Vicente, where a landslide in the Grand Ravine crushed a large number of houses and took a death toll estimated at 100 lives, according to advices from the Island of Madeira. Five bodies have been recovered from the debris.

The landslide was described as "near Sao Vicente," and resulted from recent heavy rains on the island.

The steep embankment of the ravine crumbled, hurling tons of earth and rocks toward the village.

A church and a number of houses, nine of which were buried and swept towards the sea, were in the path of the landslide.

The island of Madeira is in the Atlantic Ocean, about 440 miles from the coast of Morocco.

OHIO BUFFETED BY WIND STORM; FIRE ADDS TO CLEVELAND LOSS

Buffeted by winds of almost cyclonic proportions, Ohio today took stock of damage which may aggregate more than $1,000,000. The Cleveland area was believed hardest hit. City officials, after a preliminary survey, estimated damage there at $300,000. The major loss resulted from fire which broke out in a small dress suit rental establishment. Firemen were unable to control the blaze which did $250,000 damage before it was extinguished.

A street car shelter house in downtown Cleveland was blown down, power lines were snapped, trees were uprooted, huge signs were torn down and windows shattered.

A woman, Mrs. Eva Pari, 41, was blown against a standing automobile and was injured.

Lake shipping was not damaged due chiefly to the fact that a majority of the ships were still in winter berths.

No section of the state escaped and as the winds receded in velocity this morning temperatures fell sharply.

Snow was propelled before the blasts in central Ohio.

In the Columbus area windows were shattered, trees were blown down and small movable objects were blown for blocks. Highways were littered with dead tree branches.

At Lima, Edward Vanabough, 60 a B. and O. watchman, was seriously injured when he became so confused by the wind that he stepped into the path of an automobile.

Two large display windows were broken in downtown Springfield. Store windows were blown out in Dayton.

Southern Ohio reported high winds but little damage.

It is believed the intention of the leaders of the present serious revolt in Mexico is to place Gilberto Valenzuela, former minister to Great Britain, in power as president. General dissatisfaction with the administration of President Portes Gil is given as the reason for the uprising.

SAYS PROHIBITION HAS FINEST CHANCE EVER UNDER HOOVER

McBride Says League
Sure President Will Do Best

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Prohibition has "the greatest opportunity it has ever had" under the administration of President Hoover, in the opinion of F. Scott McBride, successor to Wayne B. Wheeler, here as legislative superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League.

McBride occupies the gloomy suite of offices, facing on the capitol grounds, where Wheeler once directed the battle for the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act and from which vantage point the slightly built and alert lawyer kept his eyes on congress.

But McBride says he is not pressing any dry legislation, nor making any recommendations for any, so well satisfied are he and his organization with the president's views and so confident are they Mr. Hoover will do everything possible to secure real enforcement.

As an indication of the Anti-Saloon League's acquiescence, McBride said he is ready to go along with President Hoover's plan to transfer prohibition enforcement machinery from the treasury to the justice department, a proposal fought bitterly by Wheeler.

Satisfied with the president's prohibition position, McBride sees the field of the Anti-Saloon League now in "mobilizing and organizing" public opinion, as he expressed it, behind Mr. Hoover's program of enforcement.

Peering through his spectacles, the tall, broad-shouldered, slightly stooped generalissimo of the Anti-Saloon League, who is placid and easy-going, without the nervous fire of Wheeler, explained why the president has satisfied the league.

"The president, in his inaugural address," he began, "said that part of the obligation for enforcement rests upon congress and the federal government. In the second place, he pointed out the necessity of this action being backed up at home."

"The federal government must do its full part and fulfill its obligation before it can be backed up by local officials. Strong federal action will stimulate local action for enforcement."

"Mr. Hoover's inauguration message was direct and forceful and promised efficient and adequate prohibition administration. He is the first president to refer to it in a direct, straight forward way. It is the greatest opportunity prohibition ever has had."

He was asked if he thought President Hoover's administration would bring complete enforcement. "The prohibition law," he replied, "will be enforced as well as any other law is enforced."

President Hoover, he believes, will secure local co-operation in their aid.

"I think the attitude of the president will have an effect on the attitude of the country."

McBride visited President Hoover at the White House yesterday with representatives of thirty-one prohibition and law enforcement organizations.

ACCUSES SHERIFF
HILLSBORO, March 7.—In a suit on file here today Frank Frasier, a prisoner in the Highland County jail, seeks to recover $150 which he claims he paid former Sheriff George F. Dunsieith with the understanding that he would be released. Dunsieith denied the charge. Frasier is held in lieu of payment of a $1000 liquor fine.

REPULSE FORCES OF GENERAL AGUIRRE; REPORT REBEL FLED

Revolters Move To Check
Advance Of Federal Troops

MEXICO CITY, March 7.—The federal government has won a decisive victory at Vera Cruz, driving the rebel forces under Gen. Jesus M. Aguirre from the city after a fierce battle, the Presidencia announced early today.

The battle lasted all day. Casualties apparently were high.

An armistice at Vera Cruz was agreed upon to avoid further bloodshed.

General Aguirre was believed to have fled from the capital on a ship.

The victory followed rapidly on the federal triumph of the northern front at Monterrey, capital of the state of Nuevo Leon. The announcement said that the Vera Cruz armistice was reached upon the request of the consular corps.

One condition imposed by the federal generals was that Aguirre immediately evacuate the city, the announcement said, adding that it was assumed he left by way of the sea.

Federal forces had been converging on Vera Cruz from three points, simultaneously with the government drive which recaptured Monterrey on the northern front. Gen. J. Gonzalo Escobar, chief rebel leader, retreated from Monterrey through Saltillo and was attempting to re-concentrate his forces at Torreon, in the state of Coahuila, where federal columns were moving for an immediate attack.

A force of government soldiers moving northward from San Luis Potosi was expected to engage Escobar's troops soon in the Torreon area.

Federal victories in the north were expected to result in restoration of telegraph and rail communication north of Saltillo within the next thirty-six hours.

The government said yesterday that only two isolated rebel units remained in the state, one at Potosi and the other at Jalapa. The federal advance through Esmeranza and Orizaba, occupying Cordova and proceeding toward the capital of the state.

"Desertions completely disorganized the majority of rebel forces under Aguirre (in Vera Cruz)" according to a government announcement. The third and probably the most stubborn rebel stronghold—the area around Sonora—was still controlled by the insurgent forces under Gen. Manzo.

The military situation developed favorably to the government much more rapidly than even the most optimistic authorities had anticipated.

NOGALES, Ariz., March 7.—Facing a double-barrelled attack by air and land from the west, Mexican rebel generals massed troops at strategic points along the border today and prepared for battle.

Federal forces from Lower California were reported to be moving east in an effort to regain some of the territory rebels have wrested from the federal government.

San Luis Sonora, on the extreme west boundary of the state, already has been captured by the federalists and it is reported that it will be used as a base for an air plane attack on the rebel strongholds to the east.

Late last night, 2,000 soldiers were removed from Ortiz, headquarters for General Francisco Manzo, leader of the rebels, to Casita, twenty-eight miles south of Ortiz to head off any possible advance of federalists from Lower California.

While rebel leaders here posted their battalions for battle, Gen. Manzo, in command of a large force, was pursuing federal troops in the state of Sinaloa. Manzo was said to have been reinforced by 6,000 Yaqui and Mayo Indians.

No announcement of the size of Manzo's force had been made but it was believed he had been joined by the armies of General Ricardo Topete and General Manuel Aguilar.

FEDERALS VICTORS AT VERA CRUZ

BATTLE OF PROXIES STARTED

FORCES OF STEWART MEET ROCKEFELLER VOTES AT WHITING

Odds Against Colonel
Stewart Is Claim;
Short Of Proxies

WHITING, Ind., March 7.—The broad-shouldered son of an Iowa blacksmith today challenged the son of the world's richest man for control of the billion-dollar Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Hours before the combatants entered the arena odds were running heavily against Col. Robert W. Stewart. It appears that nothing short of a miracle could save him from expulsion from the company directorate as demanded by John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Despite the inequalities of the contest, 2,500 stockholders and a corps of newspapermen, worthy of a championship prize fight, started early for the scene of battle, the Whiting Community Memorial which was built by Rockefeller funds.

Six years ago, before there was a Teapot Dome scandal and before Rockefeller raised the issue of "moral fitness" upon which he hopes to have Col. Stewart thrown out of his $125,000 a year job, John D. Jr., gave the oil tank town of Whiting $600,000 with which to build this memorial to the heroes of the World War.

Today the building is the locale of the most spectacular financial battle in history, with the people of Whiting—about 99 per cent of whose breadwinners are Standard Oil employees—turned against Rockefeller.

Stewart was reported to be approximately 1,000,000 proxies, or shares of Standard Oil stock, short of the number required to keep his place as chairman of the board of directors.

Wall Street and La Salle Street sent their keenest minds to support one or the other side. Col. Stewart came in person to direct his battle while Rockefeller sent his brother-in-law, Winthrop W. Aldrich, and a delegation of approximately 200 big eastern stockholders to see that his demand that Stewart be ousted is carried out.

Eligible to the meeting also were many of the men who work for wages in the Standard Oil refinery here. About one third of the 4,000 Whiting workers have invested in stock since Stewart deserted the role of country lawyer and worked himself up to the head of the billion-dollar concern. They have seen the company stock triple in value in ten years and they give full credit to Stewart. For that reason the employees are said to be 99.7 per cent for Stewart.

The battle of high finance runs back more than a year when Stewart became embroiled with the United States senate over his part in the mysterious Continental Trading Co., Ltd., of Canada, some of whose profits found their way to the Republican national committee. Stewart was called before a senate committee but declined to testify. He was indicted for Columbia court.

Rockefeller called upon Stewart to resign on the grounds that his connection with the Continental had proved him to be "morally unfit" to head the oil concern in which the Rockefellers owned 15 per cent of the stock.

At the shareholders meeting a year ago Rockefeller refused to vote his stock for Stewart's reelection but Stewart was re-elected anyhow.

Then began the sensational campaign to force Stewart out by obtaining permission from a majority of the stockholders to vote their stock against the colonel.

BOISTEROUS WINDS CHILL XENIANS BUT DAMAGE IS AVOIDED

Electric Service Worst Hit; Firemen Called

Boisterous winds blowing with near-cyclonic velocity Wednesday night caused by material property damage in Greene County.

The Dayton Power and Light Co. experienced the most serious trouble as far as could be ascertained. Scattered reports were received of poles being torn down.

The wind whipped the wires together, resulting in several transformers being burned out and temporary shutting of electric service to a number of residents in the rural districts.

The company had crews working all night Wednesday doing repair work and E. H. Heathman, local manager, expected complete service would be restored by Thursday afternoon providing no further reports of a more serious nature are received.

The wind blew mightily in Xenia but the street lighting system functioned properly, nevertheless, Mr. Heathman said. Due to the high wind pedestrians found walking difficult and it was a common sight to see passerby chasing after hats.

Light wires dragging along the roof at the home of Elmer Middleton, W. Church St., caused a small fire at 8:15 p. m. Wednesday. Firemen responded to the fifteen alarm of the year but they were not needed as no damage resulted. The property is owned by H. E. Schmidt.

Early Thursday morning no reports of even minor damage had been made to The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. although Harley Cleveland, local manager, considered it extremely likely that poles had been blown down in various parts of the county.

The windstorm was accompanied by a drop in temperature, adding a chill discomfort.

CLEVELAND POLICEMAN KILLS BANDIT CAUGHT ROBBING STORE

CLEVELAND, O., March 7.—Police shot and killed an alleged bandit here early today on the heels of the killings of Patrolman Carl A. Sherman and the wounding of Sgt. Martin E. Hoffman who were shot down in a gun fight with thugs early yesterday.

The bandit—known in police circles as Lenel Morris, 25—was shot down by Patrolman Arthur Gerdig when he crashed through the door of a store and fled. Gerdig fired when Morris ignored his command to halt.

Meantime the search for the killers who slew Sherman and wounded Hoffman evolved into one of the greatest manhunts ever seen in northern Ohio.

Twenty-five men and four women were arrested as suspects during the night and added impetus was given to the hunt when the Cleveland Plain Dealer posted a $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the gangsters.

The killing of Morris this morning was taken to indicate that police were taking no chances with suspected criminals and will "shoot to kill" when resistance is offered.

Patrolman Gerdig and Lieut. Anthony Chilar sped to the store when officers were tipped a burglar was looting it. When Morris, apparently frightened from his work, crashed through the door, Gerdig was waiting for him.

The full force of the detective bureau—125 men—spent the night running down clues which, it was Gonzalo Escobar, chief rebel leader, retreated from Monterrey through Saltillo and was attempting to re-concentrate his forces at Torreon, in the state of Coahuila, where federal columns were moving for an immediate attack.

A force of government soldiers moving northward from San Luis Potosi was expected to engage Escobar's troops soon in the Torreon area.

Federal victories in the north were expected to result in restoration of telegraph and rail communication north of Saltillo within the next thirty-six hours.

The government said yesterday that only two isolated rebel units remained in the state, one at Torreon and the other at Jalapa. The federal advance through Esmeraldas and Orizaba, occupying Cordoba and proceeding toward the capital of the state.

"Desertions completely disorganized the majority of rebel forces under Aguirre (in Vera Cruz)" according to a government announcement. The third and probably by far the most stubborn rebel stronghold—the area around Sonora—was still controlled by the insurgent forces under Gen. Manzo.

The military situation developed favorably to the government much more rapidly than even the most optimistic authorities had anticipated.

NOGALES, Ariz., March 7.—Fearing a double-barrelled attack by air and land from the west, Mexican rebel generals massed troops at strategic points along the border today and prepared for battle.

Federal forces from Lower California were reported to be moving east in an effort to regain some of the territory rebels have wrested from the central government.

San Luis, Sonora, on the extreme west boundary of the state, already has been captured by the federalists and it is reported that it will be used as a base for an air plane attack on the rebel stronghold to the east.

Late last night, 2,000 soldiers were removed from Ortiz, headquarters for General Francisco Manzo, leader of the rebels, to Casita, twenty-eight miles south of there to head off any possible advance of federalists from Lower California.

While rebel leaders here posted their battalions for battle, Gen. Manzo, in command of a large force, was pursuing federal troops in the state of Sinaloa. Manzo was said to have been reinforced by 6,000 Yaqui and Mayo Indians.

No announcement of the size of Manzo's force has been made but it was believed he had been joined by the armies of General Ricardo Tapete and General Manuel Agu-

ASSOCIATION WILL SEEK NEW HIGHWAY

COLUMBUS, O., March 7.—The Blue and Gray Trail Association, formed here late yesterday, will seek a highway connecting Michigan with Miami, Fla. It was announced today.

The highway would be a federal project and would pass through Bryan, O., to Defiance, Bellefontaine, Marysville, Columbus, Lancaster, Athens and Pomeroy.

W. A. Compton, of Pomeroy, was elected president of the organization. Other officers named were: James I. Hoffner, Lima; Walter G. Graf, Lancaster; Burton Crow, Ripley, W. Va.; Charles F. Broden, Charleston, W. Va., all vice presidents; C. L. Newcomer, Bryan, secretary and Dr. A. E. Jones, Bellefontaine, treasurer.

SAYS PROHIBITION HAS FINEST CHANCE EVER UNDER HOOVER

McBride Says League Sure President Will Do Best

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Prohibition has "the greatest opportunity it has ever had" under the administration of President Hoover, in the opinion of F. Scott McBride, successor to Wayne B. Wheeler, here as legislative superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League.

McBride occupies the gloomy suite of offices, facing on the capital grounds, where Wheeler once directed the battle for the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act and from which vantage point the slightly built and alert lawyer kept his eyes on congress.

But McBride says he is not pressing any dry legislation, nor making any recommendations for any, so well satisfied are he and his organization with the president's views and so confident are they Mr. Hoover will do everything possible to secure real enforcement.

As an indication of the Anti-Saloon League's acquiescence, McBride said he is ready to go along with President Hoover's plan to transfer prohibition enforcement machinery from the treasury to the justice department, a proposal fought bitterly by Wheeler.

Satisfied with the president's prohibition position, McBride sees the field of the Anti-Saloon League now in "mobilizing and organizing" public opinion, as he expressed it, behind Mr. Hoover's program of enforcement.

Peering through his spectacles, the tall, broad-shouldered slightly stooped generalissimo of the Anti-Saloon League, who is placid and easy-going, without the nervous fire of Wheeler, explained why the president has satisfied the league.

"The president, in his inaugural address," he began, "said that part of the obligation for enforcement rests upon congress and the federal government. In the second place, he pointed out the necessity of this action being backed up at home."

"The federal government must do its full part and fulfill its obligation before it can be backed up by local officials. Strong federal action will stimulate local action for enforcement."

"Mr. Hoover's inauguration message was direct and forceful and promised efficient and adequate prohibition administration. He is the first president to refer to it in a direct, straight forward way. It is the greatest opportunity prohibition ever has had."

He was asked if he thought President Hoover's administration would bring complete enforcement.

"The prohibition law," he replied, "will be enforced as well as any other law is enforced."

President Hoover, he believes, will secure local cooperation in their aid.

"I think the attitude of the president will have an effect on the attitude of the country."

McBride visited President Hoover at the White House yesterday with representatives of thirty-one prohibition and law enforcement organizations.

ACCUSES SHERIFF
HILLSBORO, March 7.—In a suit on file here today Frank Frasier, a prisoner in the Highland County jail, seeks to recover $150 which he claims he paid former Sheriff George F. Dunsieith for the understanding that he would be released. Dunsieith denied the charge. Frasier is held in lieu of payment of a $1000 liquor fine.

ILL WIND HELPS CLEVELAND, O., March 7—

Galelike winds prevailing between Cleveland and Chicago last night enabled Robert Hopkins, an air mail pilot, to establish a new record for the Chicago-Cleveland flight.

With the wind at his back, Hopkins, flying a Douglas plane, remained in Chicago at 10:20 p. m. and arrived here at midnight, an hour and forty minutes later.

His speed averaged 190 miles and hour, and the record beats that held by Harold Knopp by one minute.

Majority of the ships were still in winter berths.

No section of the state escaped and as the winds receded in velocity this morning temperatures fell sharply.

Snow was propelled before the blasts in central Ohio.

In the Columbus area windows were shattered, trees were blown down and small movable objects were blown for blocks. Highways were littered with dead tree branches.

At Lima, Edward Vanabough, 60, a B. and O. watchman, was seriously injured when he became so confused by the wind that he stepped into the path of an automobile.

Two large display windows were broken in downtown Springfield. Store windows were blown out in Dayton.

Southern Ohio reported high winds but little damage.

CONTROL OAT SMUT
Smuts in oats can be easily controlled by treating the seed with formaldehyde dust which will kill the fungus on the outside of the grain without injuring the seed. In tests made by the Ohio Experiment Station, 5 per cent formaldehyde, or Smuttox as it is commercially called, reduced smut to one-tenth of 1 per cent, while check plots of untreated seed showed more than 13 per cent of the heads smutted. The fungi that cause smuts of oats live as internal parasites in the oat plants, J. D. Sayre, assistant plant pathologist at the Ohio Station, points out. At heading time they produce black masses of spores instead of grains. These spores cling to the outside and within the oat seeds, and start their growth along with the oat seedling which they soon enter through the delicate tissues.

Good seed cannot be told from smut infected seed. If there was any smut present in the crop before harvest the seed should be treated. Even if there were no smut in the growing crop the grain may become infected in threshing or handling, making it advisable to treat the seed.

Many treatments have been devised, but not all are satisfactory. Some are too costly, require wetting the grain, or are likely to injure the seed. The best treatment, Dr. Sayre finds, is formaldehyde or Smuttox. It is cheap, does not require wetting the grain, does not injure the seed, is simple and easy to apply, is not dangerous to handle, and let-over grain may be fed, and above all it is effective.

About three ounces of the dust must be mixed with each bushel of grain, and the treated grain must be allowed to stand at least over night in sacks.

It May Be Urgent

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctor's word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

LUTTRELLS TAKE BARBECUE STAND

The Chick-Inn is the name that has been chosen by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Luttrell for the new barbecue which they have just opened on the Columbus Pike, two and one-half miles east of Xenia. For the present they will serve sandwiches, coffee, soft drinks and the usual barbecue refreshments but plan later to make a specialty of chicken dinners. The barbecue was formerly conducted by Muterspaugh and Greer.

CAESARCREEK HIGH PUPILS MARCH OUT AFTER SMALL FIRE

Forty students of Caesar Creek Twp. High School, eight miles from Xenia, displayed no signs of panic when smoke escaping from a hole burned in a pipe, attributed to an overheated furnace, filled the school building at 11 a. m. Thursday.

While the girls calmly marched out of the building, the boys obtained water from a well and quickly had the small blaze under control. Damage was small.

For a time when the extent of the blaze was undetermined there was some alarm and City Manager S. O. Hale was asked to authorize the Xenia Fire Department to give protection. However, the request had to be turned down because of an inadequate water supply, without which the new pumper fire truck would have been useless.

Because of the cold weather an unusually hot fire had been built in the furnace at the school building, it was said.

CAESARCREEK HIGH PUPILS MARCH OUT AFTER SMALL FIRE

Forty students of Caesarcreek Twp. High School, eight miles from Xenia, displayed no signs of panic when smoke escaping from a hole burned in a pipe, attributed to an overheated furnace, filled the school building at 11 a. m. Thursday.

While the girls calmly marched out of the building, the boys obtained water from a well and quickly had the small blaze under control. Damage was small.

For a time when the extent of the blaze was undetermined there was some alarm and City Manager S. O. Hale was asked to authorize the Xenia Fire Department to give protection. However, the request had to be turned down because of an inadequate water supply, without which the new pumper fire truck would have been useless.

Because of the cold weather an unusually hot fire had been built in the furnace at the school building, it was said.

TO INSPECT LODGE

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE DIVINE GUARANTEE—Then shall ye call upon me, and ye shall go and pray unto me, and I will hearken unto you.—Jeremiah 29:12.

PECULIAR PATRIOTISM

It is now about twenty-two and a half years since the Palma administration in Cuba found itself unable to handle a condition of militant insurgency in the island and asked American intervention in accordance with the provisions of the Platt amendment. President Roosevelt being in the White House and Mr. Taft being secretary of war, the response was prompt, and the United States took over management of Cuban affairs and remained in control at Havana for quite a while.

When Governor Magoon finally withdrew, a new domestic regime had been established, and Cuba has paddled its own canoe pretty well ever since, being assisted perhaps by the memory of an intimation from Washington that a second intervention would be the last one, and would mean permanent establishment of the sovereignty of the United States.

Although general conditions in Cuba today are not at all what they were in President Palma's time, this bit of history comes into the foreground just now because of a report from Havana that a plot to assassinate President Machado has been discovered and defeated, and that the conspirators were planning a general course of violence for the purpose of forcing American intervention. Machado is not Palma, and probably will be able to handle the situation; but it must be a peculiar brand of "patriotism" which can contemplate forcing foreign intervention of a probably lasting sort, in order to get even with a political foe.

AVOIDING INVESTMENT FRAUDS

According to A. F. Young, vice-president, the Guardian Trust company of Cleveland, the modern trust company is making adjustments in its service to meet the needs of the tremendous new investing public created by our prosperity.

"The public that now buys and sells bonds and stocks has not only doubled and re-doubled in size, but it is an entirely different public than came into the investment market a decade ago," Mr. Young says. "It embraces all—from the kings of finance down to janitors. Channels of investment that attracted savers with moderate incomes some years ago are now practically closed. . . . All such people now turn to stocks and bonds. A recent survey by Professor Irving Fisher shows that within the last five years common stockholders of corporations listed on the New York Stock Exchange have increased by one million new owners.

"This situation has proved a God-send to vigorous salesmen of decrepit securities. It has favored superficial analyses, fanciful theories for guessing short swings, tips, rumors of mergers, pools, insiders' activities—investment advice has become as free as atmosphere and almost as plentiful."

Mr. Young goes on to state that the "up-and-coming" trust company is now offering customers sound security advice and analysis of the sort that is wanted.

With stock exchanges through their rigidly supervised members and trust companies and bankers making every effort to protect the public from the type of "free" advice Mr. Young speaks of, there is little reason why anyone should become a victim of fraud or unscrupulous high pressure salesmen. There are plenty of good listed stocks and bonds and plenty of sound organizations ready to advise the investor.

Those who went south early enough for the Sharkey-Striling affair at least got their money's worth of entertainment out of the story of Jack Dempsey being shot at.

Your BROADWAY And Mine

By Walter Winchell

NEW YORK. — From Allan Semel of the N. Y. Times comes the news that at a recent affair a post-annoyed Beatrice Lillie, the star of "This Year of Grace," "My dear," persisted the bothersome person. "I spent six dollars to see you in your show."

"Pul-leez," chirped Miss Lillie as she gave that indefinable toss of her head, "refunds are made at the box office, not here!"

It is Groucho Marx's theory that Long Island sound is the popping of champagne corks—and to hear him argue it, the auto has come to stay, "but not in the Broadwhallen district!"

"Hullo! How are you?" asked the first.

"I don't feel so nifty," said the other.

"What's the matter?"

"Just two things — the tooth-ache and talking pictures."

FANATICISM

Fanatics may be more dangerous than criminals. Their distorted beliefs, flowing out of an under-nourished, over-wrought mind, affect thousands. They inspire terror. They provoke fear of a monster whom they call God. Fanatics add mental misery to the world. "Revivalists" of this type are fit for institutions of reform or everlasting silence.

WORDS

Don't underestimate the power of words. They may, on occasion, be as important as deeds. Lincoln at Gettysburg said that men would not long remember what was said there, but they would always remember what men did there. And now what men did there is remembered because of what Lincoln said there.

REWARD

There is some fun in losing your temper, letting yourself go, getting something out of your system. But there is a lot more satisfaction in keeping calm, holding your temper, getting finally what you want, and realizing comfortably that you haven't made a fool of yourself.

THE THEORY OF BUSINESS

Vahlen, great authority on sociology and the ways of human society, exposed a fallacy of modern business. The idea of almost every manufacturer is first of all to do more business than he did last year. Not many business men ask whether there is real need for greater production than last year. Not many think through the effect on mankind of more and more business. There is thought given to the quality of goods but more to the quantity. The whole theory of business seems to be the theory of greater and greater production. There may or may not be a legitimate reason for doing more business this year than last.

BEING "SET RIGHT"

It is good for all of us now and then to go through the humiliating experience of being "set right." We little by little build up a theory of our own importance. There is danger that our convictions in this regard will be largely reflected in our actions. Then somebody comes along who isn't a bit impressed with us and let's us know it. We are humiliated, but it is a wholesome experience. It puts us more nearly where we belong, takes the conceit out of us, and convinces us again that it takes a long time to produce true value.

BEAUTY IN DESIGN OF FEDERAL BUILDINGS URGED

By OGDEN L. MILLS
Undersecretary of the U. S. Treasury.

Ogden Livingston Mills was born at Newport, R. I., August 23, 1884. He was graduated from Harvard and admitted to the bar in 1908 and since then has practiced in New York City. He was defeated for election to congress in 1912 and served as a member of the state senate from 1914 to 1916. Serving with the American Expeditionary forces in France during the war, he was commissioned captain in the army. He was elected to congress in 1921, served six years, and then resigned to accept the office of undersecretary of the treasury. His home is in New York City.

The federal government is under an obligation to take the leadership in establishing beauty of design as well as practicality of use in the buildings it constructs, and those responsible for carrying out the $200,000,000 building program are fully cognizant of the traditional standards which must be met.

Certainly no one so well as the government itself can set a standard of good taste in architecture and firmly establish it. Our public buildings must of necessity add to or detract from the beauty of any city in which they are erected. Furthermore, it is inevitable that they should influence to some extent the architecture of buildings erected by the city or by private enterprise. It is of the greatest importance, therefore, that these buildings which the federal government is erecting should be simple and dignified in design and suited to the uses to which they are to be put.

But when it comes to the building of a national capital an even greater obligation is imposed upon us. We have inherited from the founders of the republic a great tradition, below which we dare not fall. And as the country has grown in greatness and in influence its capital city has become increasingly important. More and more it is being visited by those who come from every part of this country and the world. We owe it to them and to the generations yet to come to make that they shall find there a great, beautiful city—a city not made with hands only, but into which have been built the beauty and hopes and aspirations of America.

ANOTHER ADDITION TO THE FAMILY

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

To begin with, on this problem of suiting your complexion to yourself instead of fitting yourself into the average mold of pink cheeks and red lips, we had best consider just color tones.

There are half a dozen "combinations" of eyes and hair, and our first task is to find yours. Let's start at the very darkest, and work toward the light. Probably the olive brunette is the nearest we come to the Oriental in our modern America. Her eyes are dark and slumberous, her hair sleek and black, her skin olive in hue, and her character and disposition fitting her appearance. That is a fairly safe conclusion. Most of us do act the roles we fall into through natural circumstances.

Needless to say, the most fatal, not for the Oriental brunette to strike would be a vivacious one. She may be vivacious, she should be, as a matter of fact, but brilliancy and vivacity are not always the same. In a word, she may use plenty of color, but it must be suited to her. The pale (gingerine and coral tones are all wrong for her, and if she has any instinctive color sense, she won't even feel right in them.

Dark eyes and dark hair respond beautifully to the vivid tones of deep red raspberry rouge and ruby lipstick. The Oriental type can spend a great deal of thought on her eyes. Shadow in blue, black, grey, green and mauve are altogether lovely, and she should never neglect the precautionary measures which keep her eyebrows clear of line and her lashes well brushed and neatly groomed.

One step forward, we come to the Mayflower. She may be petite, vivacious, demure, graceful, poised—oh, anything at all—and her complexion problem is a very real and important one. She cannot afford to simply choose a crushed rose leaves rouge and a medium raspberry lipstick and yet her make-up go at that. Dark color tones can make her ordinary, while light ones wake a dormant vivacity. Darker rouges will suit her best if she inclines toward maturity. Gray tones will make her youthful, attractive and altogether bewitching. She must choose, oh, so carefully, for her choice will make her one of a multitude.

The fair-skinned Celtic brunette, who inherits her charm from the sunny slopes of Ireland, will select a gay geranium rouge and lipstick, which not only throws her natural coloring into brilliant relief, but which hints delightfully of the healthy, happy outdoor life which breeds such beauty as hers.

The Titian blonde is a type, and the handmaiden of Venus will rise to denounce her if she fails to play up her rare and enviable loveliness. For her: coral rouge, fragile and delicate as she herself, is; cardinal lipstick, as gay as the scarlet tanager in hue, and cream powder to emphasize the porcelain hues of her fair skin.

The Celtic blonde, with light brown hair and grey eyes, is another "tricky type," since she can be charmingly attractive or completely submerged in mediocrity. Raspberry rouge and lipstick for her, unless she has hidden charms of character which deserve the consideration or more vivid tones of make-up.

Last we come to the blonde—fair or skin, blue eyes and with hair that rivals the pale sun-gilt of the northern winters. For her color, by all means, geranium rouge, cardinal lipstick, blue eyes shadow and cream powder. Have I named your type—or, rather, have I helped you to find it for yourself? You have only to get the combination, once you know. After that, you can't go wrong.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON. — None but thoroughly respectable women will be admitted to the federal government's new prison for convicts of their sex, at Alderson, W. Va.

The membership there will also be strictly limited. After the prescribed maximum of 500 guests—shall we call them?—has been reached, subsequent applicants will have to go on the Alderson waiting list, as less exclusive prisons.

The justice department has warned federal judges throughout the country to be mighty particular in nominating candidates for the select atmosphere at Alderson—to look them up in the Social Register or something. Not that the department suggests precisely that method of determining their qualifications, but in one way or another it must be made abundantly clear that they are perfect ladies.

Otherwise the departmental superintendent of prisons reserves the right to expel them. Or, rather, as the official announcement more tactfully expresses it, they will be "transferred."

No applicant is eligible at Alderson for less than a year's entertainment. "The Alderson (W. Va.) In-prison officials expressed it to me, who nevertheless have made serious enough slips to land them behind penitentiary bars.

Which surprised me—really nice women in penitentiaries!

"More than formerly?" I asked.

"Oh, my! yes," said the official. "You see," he explained, "we have so many more laws than we did."

"What do these nice women do," I inquired, "to be sentenced to the penitentiary?"

"Well," replied the official, "there are the women bootleggers."

"There are also the women violators of the anti-narcotic laws."

"These make up about 90 per cent of all the federal government's women prisoners."

"The occasional woman convicted of counterfeiting, or as a professional smuggler, or for white slavery is likelier to be an irredeemable criminal—not so respectable."

"But many a woman bootlegger is ideal for a woman."

"RUTH EVA."

"P. S. I could never part with my baby. Do not think I do not love my husband. I do. He is not the best man I ever had, but often sleeps only a couple of hours a night."

"R. E."

The only thing I can think of to right the matter, Ruth Eva, is to talk frankly to your husband and tell him what you suspect.

It is possible, of course, that the other half is not the trouble that is worrying him. On the other hand, if it is the girl, the best way to settle it is talk frankly to another, and for him to see the girl, if possible. He may find that she is not at all the girl he loved, and that you come first. That is taking it for granted that he has not recently seen her. If there were no children and you loved him enough to want his happiness only, you could let him go to her, but baby complicates matters. Certainly you should not give her up, and I doubt very much whether he would be willing to, either, or her mother either. At any rate, bringing the matter into the open and talking it over sympathetically may relieve his mind. Sorrow nursed and brooded over becomes distorted and in this case makes the whole situation intolerable for you.

JUST A PAL: Your guess is correct. So many letters are in my desk to be answered and the have to be done in turn as much as possible. However, as you have waited patiently for some time I thought I would answer this last right away. I think as you do, that your boy friend will get work he will feel different about many things. There is one point to his joining the navy. Besides giving him a living it would keep you two from marrying before you are old enough. I know exactly how you feel, but I also know how he feels, and he wouldn't be the best man if he felt differently. He wants to do his part, and won't accept favors that he can't return.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am engaged to a boy who had to leave on business and won't be back for a long time. Before he left me he promised to be true and not go with anyone else. I received a letter the other day and he asked me if he could take a girl to a dance. Please give me your advice and tell me what to tell him. Do you think he still loves me?"

It was nice that he wrote and asked you about it, first, wasn't it? Elizabeth? I think I do, yes, and then you will feel free to go with someone else and not have to stay at home all the time he is away. So long as you have an understanding about the matter you can be just as true to one another this way as any other.

PATRICIA: I should think the man probably loved you but was short of funds and didn't like to ask for "dates" because of that.

Diet and Health

Answers to Mothers
God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers.

—Jewish Proverbs.

"My baby's tongue is terribly coated, although I wash it twice a day with boracic acid solution. First it was white, but now it is brown. She has 10 teeth, is a year old and weighs 28 pounds. (Weighed six pounds at birth). I am feeding her, but am also still nursing her. She doesn't sleep well at night. I imagine on account of her cutting teeth. That is why I hesitate to wean her."

MRS. D.

It is advisable, in most cases, to begin to wean a baby around the ninth month and have it completely weaned by the tenth, Mrs. D. It is probable that your baby is getting too much milk through her nursing and won't take enough solid foods which help to cleanse the tongue.

Twenty-eight pounds is overweight for a baby of one year unless it is large framed. It may be that your baby is fat, flabby and a little anemic. I would go to a children's specialist or to a baby clinic and have her checked up.

We have a list of modern books on the general care and feeding of children which you may have.

A.—After the surgical removal of ovaries before the change of life period, the change is brought about. Frequently after this, physicians prescribe certain ovarian substances, and in many cases they seem to help, as they have helped you. Tell your husband that this is not comparable to drug staking, as he thinks, and no harm will come from it.

We have an article on the menopause (change of life) if you are interested.

Catnip for Colic
"Will you please tell me what effect catnip tea has on a baby? I know a woman who gives her baby catnip tea to prevent its crying, and it seems so dull and tired and sick all the time, when given this stuff."

M.

Catnip (technical name cataria) is so called because cats are apparently stimulated by it. It has a stimulating principle, and is supposed to have some effect in expelling gas, and is an old-fashioned remedy for baby colic. The dose as given is two tea-spoonfuls of the tea or infusion. But any stimulant that is given in large doses is apt to stupefy and that is probably what happens to the baby you speak of. Much harm can come from the practice.

There is something wrong with the feeding program of a baby who habitually has colic. While over-feeding may cause it, not infrequently (contrary to the usual idea) what is supposed to be colic is hunger, and is due to under-feeding.

R.—Yes, pregnancy is possible if there is one healthy ovary. The removal of a diseased appendix has no bearing, except a good one, on the possibility of pregnancy.

Just Worried: I'm sorry that your question (and those of many others) are of such a nature that I cannot discuss them in the newspaper column. You must see your physician.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE DIVINE GUARANTEE—Then shall ye call upon me, and ye shall go and pray unto me, and I will hearken unto you.—Jeremiah 29:12.

PECULIAR PATRIOTISM

It is now about twenty-two and a half years since the Palma administration in Cuba found itself unable to handle a condition of militant insurgency in the island and asked American intervention in accordance with the provisions of the Platt amendment. President Roosevelt being in the White House and Mr. Taft being secretary of war, the response was prompt, and the United States took over management of Cuban affairs and remained in control at Havana for quite a while.

When Governor Magoon finally withdrew, a new domestic regime had been established, and Cuba has paddled its own canoe pretty well ever since, being assisted perhaps by the memory of an intimation from Washington that a second intervention would be the last one, and would mean permanent establishment of the sovereignty of the United States.

Although general conditions in Cuba today are not at all what they were in President Palma's time, this bit of history comes into the foreground just now because of a report from Havana that a plot to assassinate President Machado has been discovered and defeated, and that the conspirators were planning a general course of violence for the purpose of forcing American intervention. Machado is not Palma, and probably will be able to handle the situation; but it must be a peculiar brand of "patriotism" which can contemplate forcing foreign intervention of a probably lasting sort, in order to get even with a political foe.

AVOIDING INVESTMENT FRAUDS

According to A. F. Young, vice-president, the Guardian Trust company of Cleveland, the modern trust company is making adjustments in its service to meet the needs of the tremendous new investing public created by our prosperity.

"The public that now buys and sells bonds and stocks has not only doubled and re-doubled in size, but it is an entirely different public than came into the investment market a decade ago," Mr. Young says. "It embraces all—from the kings of finance down to janitors. Channels of investment that attracted savers with moderate incomes some years ago are now practically closed. . . . All such people now turn to stocks and bonds. A recent survey by Professor Irving Fisher shows that within the last five years common stockholders of corporations listed on the New York Stock Exchange have increased by one million new owners.

"This situation has proved a God-send to vigorous salesmen of decrepit securities. It has favored superficial analyses, fanciful theories for guessing short swings, tips, rumors of mergers, pools, insiders' activities—investment advice has become as free as air and almost as plentiful."

Mr. Young goes on to state that the "up-and-coming" trust company is now offering customers sound security advice and analysis of the sort that is wanted.

With stock exchanges through their rigidly supervised members and trust companies and bankers making every effort to protect the public from the type of "free" advice Mr. Young speaks of, there is little reason why anyone should become a victim of fraud or unscrupulous high pressure salesmen. There are plenty of good listed stocks and bonds and plenty of sound organizations ready to advise the investor.

Those who went south early enough for the Sharkey-Strling affair at least got their money's worth of entertainment out of the story of Jack Dempsey being shot at.

Your BROADWAY

NEW YORK. — From Allan Semel of the N. Y. Times comes the news that at a recent affair a pet annoyed Beatrice Lillie, the star of "This Year of Grace," "My dear," persisted the both-person person. "I spent six dollars to see you in your show."

"Pul-leez," chirped Miss Lillie as she gave that indefinable toss of her head, "refunds are made at the box office, not here!"

"What's the matter?"
"Just two things—the tooth-ache and talking pictures."

IN SORROW

GENTLY, Lord, oh, gently lead us,
Pilgrims in this vale of tears,
Through the trials yet decreed us,
Till our last great change appears.

When temptation's darts assail us,
When in devious paths we stray,
Let Thy goodness never fail us,
Lead us in Thy perfect way.

In the hour of pain and anguish,
In the hour when death draws near,
Suffer not our hearts to languish,
Suffer not our souls to fear;
Bid us in Thine arms be ended,
Bid us in Thine arms to rest,
Till, by angel bands attended,
We wake among the blessed.

The Way of the World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

FANATICISM

Fanatics may be more dangerous than criminals. Their distorted beliefs, flowing out of an under-nourished, over-wrought mind, affect thousands. They inspire terror. They provoke fear of a monster whom they call God. Fanatics add mental misery to the world. "Revivalists" of this type are fit for institutions of reform or everlasting silence.

WORDS

Don't underestimate the power of words. They may, on occasion, be as important as deeds. Lincoln at Gettysburg said that men would not long remember what was said there, but they would always remember what men did there. And now what men did there is remembered because of what Lincoln said there.

REWARD

There is some fun in losing your temper, letting yourself go, getting something out of your system. But there is a lot more satisfaction in keeping calm, holding your temper, getting finally what you want, and realizing comfortably that you haven't made a fool of yourself.

THE THEORY OF BUSINESS

Viblen, great authority on sociology and the ways of human society, exposed a fallacy of modern business. The idea of almost every manufacturer is first of all to do more business than he did last year. Not many business men ask whether there is real need for greater production than last year. Not many think through the effect on mankind of more and more business. There is thought given to the quality of goods but more to the quantity. The whole theory of business seems to be the theory of greater and greater production. There may or may not be a legitimate reason for doing more business this year than last.

BEING "SET RIGHT"

It is good for any of us now and then to go through the humbling experience of being "set right." We little by little build up a theory of our own importance. There is danger that our convictions in this regard will be largely reflected in our actions. Then somebody comes along who isn't a bit impressed with us and let's us know it. We are humiliated, but it is a wholesome experience. It puts us more nearly where we belong, takes the conceit out of us, and convinces us again that it takes a long time to produce true value.

BEAUTY IN DESIGN OF FEDERAL BUILDINGS URGED

By OGDEN L. MILLS
Undersecretary of the U. S. Treasury.

Ogden Livingston Mills was born at Newport, R. I., August 23, 1884. He was graduated from Harvard and admitted to the bar in 1908 and since then has practiced in New York City. He was defeated for election to congress in 1912 and served as a member of the state senate from 1914 to 1916. Serving with the American Expeditionary forces in France during the war, he was commissioned a captain in the army. He was elected to congress in 1921, served six years, and then resigned to accept the office of undersecretary of the treasury. His home is in New York City.

The federal government is under an obligation to take the leadership in establishing beauty of design as well as practicality of use in the buildings it constructs, and those responsible for carrying out the $200,000,000 building program are fully cognizant of the traditional standards which must be met.

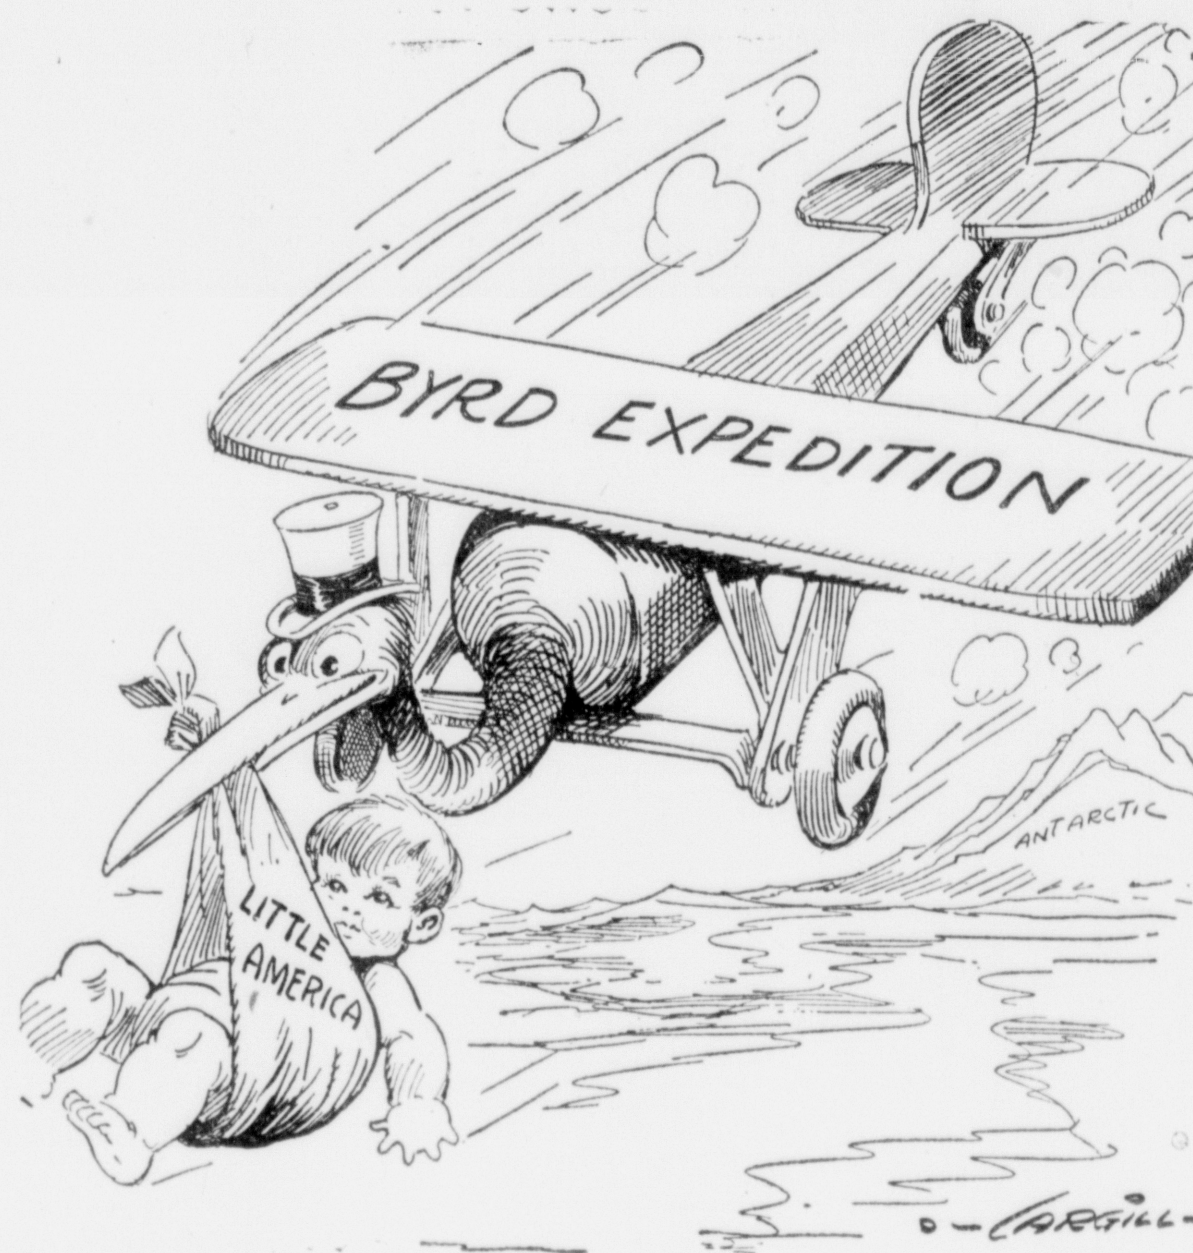

Certainly no one so well as the government itself can set a standard of good taste in architecture and firmly establish it. Our public buildings must of necessity add to or detract from the beauty of any city in which they are erected. Furthermore, it is inevitable that they should influence to some extent the architecture of private enterprises erected by the city or by private enterprise. It is of the greatest importance, therefore, that these buildings which the federal government is erecting should be simple and dignified in design and suited to the uses to which they are to be put.

But when it comes to the building of a national capital an even greater obligation is imposed upon us. We have inherited from the founders of the republic a great tradition, below which we dare not fall. And as the country has grown in greatness and in influence its capital city has become increasingly important. More and more it is being visited by those who come from every part of this country and the world. We owe it to them and to the generations yet to come to see that they shall find there a great, beautiful city—a city not made with hands only, but into which have been built the beauty and hopes and aspirations of America.

Superintendent of prisons reserves the right to expel them. Or rather, as the official announcement more tactfully expresses it, they will be "transferred."

ANOTHER ADDITION TO THE FAMILY

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

To begin with, on this problem of suiting your complexion to yourself instead of fitting yourself into the complexion of others, pink cheeks and red lips, we had better consider just color tones. There are eyes and hair, and our first task is to find yours. Let's start at the very darkest, and work toward the light. Probably the olive complexion is the nearest we come to the Oriental in our modern America. Her eyes are dark and slumberous, her hair sleek and black, her skin olive in hue, and her character and disposition fitting her appearance. That is a fairly safe conclusion. Most of us do act the roles we fall into through natural circumstances.

Needless to say, the most fatal not for the Oriental brunette to strike would be a vivacious one. She may be vivacious, but she should be, as a matter of fact, but vivacious and vivacious are not always the same. In a word, she may use plenty of color, but it must be suited to her. The pale gingerine and coral tones are all wrong for her, and if she has any instinctive color sense, she won't even feel right in them.

Dark eyes and dark hair respond beautifully to the vivid tones of deep red raspberry rouge and ruby lipstick. The Oriental type can spend a great deal of thought on her eyes. Shadow in black, black, grey, green, and mauve are altogether lovely, and she should never neglect the precautionary measures which keep her eyebrows clear of line and her lashes well brushed and neatly groomed.

One step forward, we come to the Mayflower. She may be petite, vivacious, demure, gracious, poised—oh, anything at all—and her complexion problem is a very real and important one. She cannot afford to simply choose a crushed rose leaves rouge and a medium raspberry lipstick and yet her make-up go at that. Dark color tones can make her ordinary, while light ones wake a dormant vivacity. Darker rouges will suit her best if she inclines toward maturity. Gray tones will make her youthful, attractive and lipstick, which not only throws her natural coloring into brilliant relief, but which hints delightfully of the healthy, happy outdoor life which breeds such beauty as hers.

The Titian blonde is a type, and the handmaiden of Venus will rise to denounce her if she fails to play up her rare and enviable loveliness. For her: coral rouge, and delicate as she herself is, cardinal lipstick, as gay as the scarlet tanager in hue, and cream powder to emphasize the porcelain hues of her fair skin.

The Celtic blonde, with light brown hair and grey eyes, is another "risky type," since she can be charmingly attractive or completely submerged in mediocrity. Raspberry rouge and lipstick for her, unless she has hidden charms of character which deserve the consideration or more vivid tones of make-up.

Last we come to the blonde—fair or raven, blue eyes and with hair that rivals the pale sunlight of the northern winters. For her color, by all means, geranium rouge, cardinal lipstick, and cream shadow and cream powder.

Have I named your type—or, rather, have I helped you to find it for yourself? You have only to get the combination once you know. After that, you can't go wrong.

WASHINGTON. — None but thoroughly respectable women will be admitted to the federal government's new prison for convicts of their sex, at Alderson, W. Va.

The membership there will also be strictly limited.

prison officials expressed it to me, who nevertheless have made serious enough slips to land them behind penitentiary bars.

Which prisoners—really nice women in penitentiaries! "More than formerly!" I asked.

"Oh, my! yes," said the official. "You see," he explained, "I have so many more laws than we did."

"What do these nice women do," I inquired, "to be sentenced to the penitentiary?" "Well," replied the official, "there are the women bootleggers."

"There are also the women violators of the anti-narcotic laws."

"These make up about 90 percent of all the federal government's women prisoners."

"The occasional woman convicted of counterfeiting or as a professional smuggler or for white slavery is likely to be an irreclaimable criminal—not so respectable."

"But many a woman bootlegger is ideal for Alderson."

"RUTH EVA."

"P. S. I could never part with my baby. Do not think I do love my husband. I do. He has been very sad for the last month, and often sleeps only a couple of hours a night."

"R. E."

The only thing I can think of to right the matter, Ruth Eva, is to talk frankly to your husband and tell him what you suspect. It is possible, of course, that the other girl is not the trouble that is worrying him. On the other hand, if it is the girl, the best way to settle it is talk frankly to one another, and for him to see the girl, if possible. He may find that she is not at all the girl he loved, and that you come first. That is taking it for granted that he has not recently seen her. If there were no children and you loved him enough to want his happiness only, you could let him go to her, but baby complicates matters. Ruth Eva should not give her up, and I doubt very much whether he would be willing to.

Broiled Steak—Select a tender steak from one and one-half to two inches thick. Trim off excess fat and wipe it with a damp cloth. If you are broiling it on a gas stove, grease the round, of the rack and lay it on until it is seared on one side, then turn and sear the other. Have the broiler two or three inches from the flame. When both sides are seared, reduce the flame and cook until done to taste. To pan broil, sear the steak on both sides in a lightly greased, sizzling hot skillet, then reduce the heat and cook, turning for even cooking. Do not add water and do not cover. Pour off excess fat so that it won't fry. When done, place on hot platter, season with butter, pepper and salt and serve at once.

Mushroom Sauce—Canned or fresh mushrooms may be used. Cook one pound fresh, chopped mushrooms in two tablespoons butter in a covered pan five to ten minutes, season and serve with the steak.

Apple Blossom Salad—Pare and core six apples, and cook in a syrup of one and one-fourth cups of sugar, and a half cup of water. Color them red with a few cinnamon drops, and cook till tender, basting them with the red syrup till they are a good color. Cool and chill. Serve on lettuce and stuff the centers of the apples with cream cheese mixed with chopped walnuts, and topped with a spoonful of mayonnaise.

Diet and Health

Answers to Mothers
God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers.

—Jewish Proverbs.
"My baby's tongue is terribly coated, although I wash it twice a day with boracic acid solution. First it was white, but now it is brown. She has 10 teeth, is a year old and weighs 28 pounds. (Weighted six pounds at birth). I am feeding her, but am also still nursing her. She doesn't sleep well at night. I imagine on account of her cutting teeth. That is why I hesitate to wean her."

It is advisable, in most cases, to begin to wean a baby around the tenth month and have it completely weaned by the tenth, Mrs. D. It is probable that your baby is getting too much milk through her nursing and won't take enough solid foods which help to cleanse the tongue.

Twenty-eight pounds is overweight for a baby of one year unless it is large framed. It may be that your baby is fat, flabby and a little anemic. I would go to a children's specialist or to a baby clinic and have her checked up.

We have a list of modern books on the general care and feeding of children which you may have.

A.—After the surgical removal of ovaries before the change of life period, the change is brought about. Frequently after this, physicians prescribe certain ovarian substances, and in many cases they seem to help, as they have helped you. Tell your husband that this is not comparable to drug taking, as he thinks, and no harm will come from it.

We have an article on the menopause (change of life) if you are interested.

Catnip for Colic
"Will you please let me what effect catnip tea has on a baby? I know a woman who gives her baby catnip tea to prevent its crying, and it seems so dull and tired and sick all the time, who given this stuff."

Catnip (technical name cataria) is so called because cats are apparently stimulated by it. It has a stimulating principle and is supposed to have some effect in expelling gas, and is an old-fashioned remedy for baby colic. The dose as given is two teaspoonsful of the tea or infusion. But any stimulant that is given in large doses is apt to stupefy, and that is probably what happens to the baby who speak of. Much harm can come from this practice.

There is something wrong with the feeding program of a baby who habitually has colic. While over-feeding may cause it, not infrequently (contrary to the usual idea) what is supposed to be colic is hunger, and is due to under-feeding.

R.—Yes, pregnancy is possible if there is one healthy ovary. The removal of a diseased appendix has no bearing, except a good one, on the possibility of pregnancy.

Just Worried: I'm sorry that your question (and those of many others) of such a nature that I cannot discuss them in the newspaper column. You must see your physician.

Tomorrow: Perversion of Appetite.

Editor's Note: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 2 cents in coin for each article, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, 10 cents in coin, with fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"How far that little candle throws its beam," says Purkin in Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice," "so shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Conversely, how very far goes the influence for evil of a lie, maliciously told.

An unselfish young wife writes me of the unhappiness touching three or four—lives, by such a lie, and asks me to help her solve the problem involved.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I have been married only a few years but I am not happy. My husband loves another girl that he was once engaged to marry. He has never told me anything about this girl, as he is not that kind. He is true, but not happy. I hear her first name when he talks in his sleep. Some one told a lie about her to split them up. We have one baby and he loves her better than anyone."

"Should I give him up? I know he is unhappy as well as I, but do not know if this girl loves him."

SPORT SHOTS

FRAMED BY PHIL

And now it has been decided after all to stage the semi-finals of the Southwestern Ohio district basketball tournament Friday and Saturday at the Montgomery County Fairgrounds coliseum in Dayton as originally planned instead of the Roosevelt High School gym in Dayton as later decided.

Recent decision of the district board to hold the semi-finals at Roosevelt because of the high rent at the coliseum aroused such a storm of protest that the board again changed its plans Tuesday night.

King Solomon himself never made a wiser decision. Seating accommodations at the Roosevelt gym are inadequate to care for the large throngs of fans while at the coliseum there are plenty of seats for all.

Of course, some fans will raise the old hue and cry about the coliseum floor giving Dayton teams an advantage over opponents, but that really makes little difference.

This was demonstrated in the preliminary round at Springfield last week when at the eight Dayton entries in the Class A division won their first round games by convincing scores.

William Bernholz, former Capital University star athlete, who has been appointed to succeed Jerry Katherman, former Xenia Central High coach, as athletic director at Capital, has inherited a tough job. Katherman's resignation takes effect at the close of the present school term.

One Columbus sports scribe sees it this way: "We have always felt that Katherman did just about all that could be reasonably expected from the material at hand and if Bernholz is able to do as well there should be no kick coming."

The trouble at Capital is that the Lutheran teams are handicapped in competing with Ohio Conference teams in football. Capital holds no particular inducements to start high school athletes. In basketball, Capital makes a better showing in the conference.

William Moorehead, who established a new record for the Recreation Parlor alleys Saturday night when he bowled a single game of 289, eleven pins short of a perfect game, in a match between Xenia and Troy all-star teams, is second high average man in the Recreation Bowling League. He is a member of the league - leading Greene County Lumber Co. bowling quintet and has a season's average of 184.37 for fifty-five games.

POSTAL EMPLOYEE KILLED BY FRIEND

DEGRAFF, O., March 7.—Elmer Detrick, 31, father of four children, surrendered to the sheriff today after killing Charles Banning, 41, a post office employee.

The shooting occurred at the Detrick home and was said to have resulted from a quarrel involving Detrick's wife.

Detrick, a laborer, told police he came home early today and finding his wife absent, went across the street to the home of Banning, a divorced man, who resided alone.

Detrick charged he found his wife in the Banning house and compelled her to return home with him. Banning followed, he declared, then attacked him.

Detrick said he obtained his rifle and shot Banning through the heart.

CARROLL - BINDER COMPANY TO EXPAND; WILL ERECT BUILDING

With the acquisition of property at Bellbrook Ave. and Charles St., the site of the old Dewine Milling Co. plant destroyed by fire more than a year ago, The Carroll-Binder Co., 108-114 E. Main St., announced plans Thursday for the erection of a new building to be used for the exclusive sale of high grade motor oils at greatly reduced prices.

Plans are being drawn for the new structure which is expected to be a two-story, brick building. Actual construction work will start as soon as the weather permits.

According to Charles A. Carroll, treasurer, the gasoline and oil trade of the firm has grown to such proportions that it was deemed necessary to acquire new property in order to take care of the increased volume of business being transacted.

The new company will handle high grade lubricating motor oils in its new building and plans to enter the wholesale and retail trade on an elaborate scale in order to meet the chain store and mail order house competition.

The property was acquired from Willard Jackson, Dayton, O., and the consideration was not disclosed. Besides having a frontage of 125 feet and a depth of about 200 feet, there is also a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad spur on the premises.

The local company is a wholesale and retail dealer in gasoline, kerosene, oils, tires, batteries and auto accessories.

H. L. Binder is president and C. A. Carroll treasurer of the company.

1919—LEONARD TOYS WITH DUNDEE

Written Exclusively for Central Press and Xenia Gazette.

Benny Leonard, greatest of all lightweight of modern times, thoroughly massaged Johnny Dundee in the third of their meetings for the title during the course of an eight-round bout held at Madison Square Garden in New York on Jan. 29, 1919.

The champion sprayed a stream of leather over the Scotch Wop for the entire course of the battle, and it was apparent to the ring-siders that Benny was making no effort to score a knockout punch on his favorite meal ticket.

In the last round Leonard cut loose with a display of fancy ring work. He rocked Dundee and blood spurted from the nose of the veteran Italian. When it appeared certain that Dundee was doomed for the works the title holder eased off and coasted through to the final bell.

Leonard made little effort to avoid Dundee's best punches. He danced in and out, shifting and feinting his opponent into awkward positions.

The champion was at his best in this fight, although he did not attempt to slip over a finishing punch.

Mrs. Anson was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McMillan of Cedarville, where she lived until recent years. The petition concludes with the declaration that Chaplain Reed was "unkind and insulting" and "had urged their separation." It cites that Mrs. Reed owns property, that Chaplain Reed does not, and asked that he be denied divorcement.

The Reeds are the parents of one daughter, Mrs. Inez Gertrude Dill, 23.

FRAMED BY PHIL

And now it has been decided after all to stage the semi-finals of the Southwestern Ohio district basketball tournament Friday and Saturday at the Montgomery County Fairgrounds coliseum in Dayton as originally planned instead of the Roosevelt High School gym in Dayton as later decided.

Recent decision of the district board to hold the semi-finals at Roosevelt because of the high rent at the coliseum aroused such a storm of protest that the board again changed its plans Tuesday night.

King Solomon himself never made a wiser decision. Seating accommodations at the Roosevelt gym are inadequate to care for the large touring crowds while at the coliseum there are plenty of seats for all.

Of course, some fans will raise the old hue and cry about the coliseum floor giving Dayton teams an advantage over opponents, but that really makes little difference.

This was demonstrated in the preliminary round at Springfield last week when all of the eight Dayton entries in the Class A division won their first round games by convincing scores.

William Bernlohr, former Capital University star athlete, who has been appointed to succeed Jerry Katherman, former Xenia Central High coach, as athletic director at Capital, has inherited a tough job. Katherman's resignation takes effect at the close of the present school term.

One Columbus sports scribe sees it this way: "We have always felt that Katherman did just about all that could be reasonably expected from the material at hand and if Bernlohr is able to do as well there should be no kick coming."

The trouble at Capital is that the Lutheran teams are handicapped in competing with Ohio Conference schools in football. Capital holds no particular inducements to star high school athletes. In basketball, Capital makes a better showing in the conference.

William Moorehead, who established a new record for the Recreation Parlor alleys Saturday night when he bowled a single game of 239, eleven pins short of a perfect game, in a match between Xenia and Troy all-star teams, is second high average man in the Recreation Bowling League. He is a member of the league - leading Greene County Lumber Co. bowling quintet and has a season's average of 184.37 for fifty-five games.

POSTAL EMPLOYEE KILLED BY FRIEND

DEGRAFF, O., March 7.—Elmer Detrick, 31, father of four children, surrendered to the sheriff today after killing Charles Banning, 41, a post office employee.

The shooting occurred at the Detrick home and was said to have resulted from a quarrel involving Detrick's wife.

Detrick, a laborer, told police he came home early today and finding his wife absent, went across the street to the home of Banning, a divorced man, who resided alone.

Detrick charged he found his wife in the Banning house and compelled her to return home with him. Banning followed, he declared, then attacked him. Detrick said he obtained his rifle and shot Banning through the heart.

EAGLES BOOK "K. O." JENKINS TO MEET "YOUNG" KIEFER HERE

In response to many requests received by the athletic committee since the exhibition boxing matches which were held in the gymnasium of Xenia Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, on N. This match will be the main event of a boxing show to be held at the Eagle gym Friday night, March 8 at 8 o'clock. Five preliminaries and a semi-final bout will complete the card.

ANTIOCH COUNCIL ELECTS NINE NEW MEMBERS OF BOARD

Nine new Division "A" members of the community government council at Antioch College, which governs student affairs at the college, were elected by the college students and faculty at the annual division council election Wednesday.

The new members include seven students and two faculty members. Those elected are: Harriet Blaisdell, James Van Buskirk, Richard Colestock, Otto F. Mathias, a faculty member, Hubert Eichenhofer, Charles Vanderhulst, Vivian Bresnahan, faculty member, Robert Deane and William Fife.

Twenty-one students were nominated for the nine vacancies and the election produced close contests this year due to certain vital issues at stake.

These new members will take charge for the last five weeks of school during the present term and will continue in office until this time next year.

When Division "B" returns to school it will also elect nine members to the council for a similar period.

In recent weeks heated debates have been held regarding the form of campus government now in existence at Antioch. At the election Wednesday students also expressed their preference of two forms of government—the present community form in which the faculty is represented by at least one member, and the proposed student government in which faculty members are excluded. The result of their vote on the question was not announced.

The proposed exclusion of the faculty from management of student affairs is said to be indirectly the result of several issues which brought about a clash between students and faculty. One of these was said to be the "lights out" ruling which precipitated a controversy on the campus last year.

Although it is considered unlikely that a change in the present government will be made soon, the sentiment of the students, as expressed at the annual council elections, probably will be taken into consideration if the question comes to a head.

SCOUT NEWS

Troop No. 45, Boy Scouts of America, will hold its regular meeting at the Scout cabin Friday night. All patrols are urged to arrange for 100 per cent attendance as the contest now in progress is drawing to a close. Plans will also be outlined for the jamboree to be held in April. Another proposed hike will also be discussed.

AIRPLANE EXPERT LAUDS KONJOLA FOR ITS POWERS

Happy Man, III for Five Years, Relates Wonderful Experience With New Medicine

"I was sick for five years," said Mr. William T. Penn, airplane mechanic at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, "and to realize that Konjola made me well taxes my imagination."

MR. WM. T. PENN

tion. I suffered from indigestion and stomach ulcers, and when I say suffered, I mean it. Piercing intestinal pains hit me daily, and I lost sleep and became nervous, and my condition generally was run down. In those five years I never stopped in my search for relief, but instead of finding even temporary relief, I became constantly worse.

"Konjola was recommended strongly, but I was skeptical. However I finally decided to try it, and by the time I had taken the second bottle of this new medicine I knew that I was on the right track at last. I improved so rapidly that I could hardly believe the change that was coming over me. Today I am my old self again. My wife and father, seeing the splendid results I had with Konjola are now using it with the same fine results. I hope that other sufferers will give this sterling medicine a chance, and I know Konjola will do the rest."

Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains 22 juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Gallaher drug store, and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section. —Adv.

BUCKEYE PRESS TO OCCUPY BUILDING VACATED BY FORD

The Buckeye Press, printing firm located at 24 W. Main St., on the first floor of a building owned by J. F. Norckauer, will be moved soon to the ground floor of the old Y. M. C. A. building at Market and Whiteman Sts., which is being vacated this week by the Bryant Motor Sales Co., local Ford agency, it was announced Thursday by F. M. Torrence.

The printing company has occupied its present location for the last eight years. A definite date for the transfer has not been decided upon but the removal will be preceded by necessary extensive interior alterations at the new location, Mr. Torrence said.

Work of transferring the Ford agency equipment to its handsome new sales and service station at Market and Whiteman Sts., was started Thursday and is expected to be virtually completed by Saturday.

Each Drop Like a Whole Vegetable!

FRESH vegetables would give us all a state of health, if only we would eat enough of them. Few of us do. But here is a little secret about assisting the peristaltic action so vitally important to our health; there is enough in one spoon of plain syrup pepsin to fill a market basket!

Several factors affecting sound health are often ignored in the average person's daily diet. But add a little syrup pepsin now and then, and watch what happens! Your appetite improves; so does your digestion, and elimination. Lots of folks who thought they were in perfect physical condition see a tremendous change after ten days with syrup pepsin.

When a scientific, vegetable corrective can put you in fine physical form so quickly, and keep the whole alimentary tract cleansed and sweet and free from need of powerful purges—it surely is worth trying! An actual test can be made in ten days. In this short space of time your stomach, and liver and bowels can be in shape to handle anything that's eaten! Children thrive on almost any diet when pure pepsin syrup is given just occasionally to help assimilation, and make elimination thorough and regular. Elderly people have a far easier time, too, where this ideal combination of laxative herbs and pure pepsin is appreciated. Dr. Caldwell discovered this innocent means of keeping bowels normally active in 1875. Now, you couldn't find a drugstore without this famous prescription, all put up with directions enclosed. —Adv.

"By Joe! it's good to smoke Luckies."

Felix Count Luckner

"Lucky Strikes? By Joe, yes. Let me tell you. I was cruising in my raider in the South Pacific. It had been damp, rainy weather and every bit of tobacco we had on the ship was mouldy and could not be smoked. We began to be desperate. The men were—what you call—grouchy. Along came an American ship. We captured her and after taking the captain, officers and crew aboard my raider and finding comfortable places for them to stay, I and my officers went over to the captured ship to see if there was anything aboard that we wanted. We searched her. And what do you think? Under the cushions of a seat in the captain's cabin we found 500 packages of Lucky Strikes! I tore off the end of one and lit it and filled my lungs with it, and By Joe, I was a man again. We had enough for all the crew and we were all cheered up and we all became friends once more. By Joe, I was sorry to sink that American ship that had brought us those smokes. Lucky Strikes, they are wonderful, and my Countess, of course, wishes a fashionable, slender figure. She smokes Lucky Strikes when she is offered fattening sweets. And my life has always been an active one and I must be trim and fit. I love to feel what you Americans call 'peppy.' So no sweets for me. Give me a Lucky Strike instead. By Joe, it's good for us to smoke Luckies."

COUNT FELIX VON LUCKNER

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in Cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This confirms in no uncertain terms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

"Konjola was recommended strongly, but I was skeptical. However I finally decided to try it, and by the time I had taken the second bottle of this new medicine I knew that I was on the right track at last. I improved so rapidly that I could hardly believe the change that was coming over me. Today I am my old self again. My wife and I, after seeing the splendid results I had with Konjola are now using it with the same fine results. I hope that other sufferers will give this sterling medicine a chance, and I know Konjola will do the rest."

Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains 22 juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY (An Ohio Corporation)

A Statement To The Farmers Of Greene Co.

Several months ago we announced an entirely new change in our policies. We believed that the people of Greene Co. would be willing to pay cash for their GASOLINE and OIL if they could buy at greatly reduced prices. So we placed our business on a strictly CASH basis. Now our beliefs have been justified and our Gasoline and Oil trade has grown to the place where it was necessary to acquire new property in order to take care of the tremendous volume of business that we have been doing.

We are announcing the purchase of the Dewine Milling Co.'s plant. This plant is to be rebuilt and will be used by us for the exclusive sales of HIGH GRADE MOTOR OILS at greatly reduced prices.

We urge every farmer to see us before buying his oil.

Remember we

BUY FOR CASH

SELL FOR CASH

Hence we sell at greatly reduced prices.

ACID STOMACH RUINS APPETITE

Thin, pale people—the despondent sort who never have an appetite, and complain of headaches, indigestion, dizziness, biliousness, usually have too much acid in their stomach. And unless they displace it, any food they eat turns into sour bile and foul gases, which poison their system.

Pape's Diapiesin dissolves that poisonous acid, sweetens the stomach and digests your meals. Many thousands of people have brought back the appetite of their youth and gained weight simply by chewing one of the pleasant tablets of Pape's Diapiesin after meals.

It does what it promises. That's the reason 5 million packages are used a year—ask your nearest druggist for it.

JUST DIAL NUMBER FOR RIGHT TIME

Everett J. Cook, right, standing by his time-telling apparatus; left Henry Johnson, electrical expert, who assisted Cook in the perfection of the invention.

TOLEDO, O., March 7.—It has remained for a Toledo inventor, Everett J. Cook, to create a device which will give the correct time of the day to anyone merely by lifting a telephone receiver and dialing a certain number.

Simultaneously with the establishment of the connection, a well modulated voice will convey to the listener the correct time coupled with a trade message or advertisement of interest.

Perfect and patented, the device stands today on the eve of its inauguration as a public service and advertising medium, as a monument to two years of wireless effort on the part of the inventor whose skill was taxed time after time by discouraging developments.

Mechanism Not Intricate
Cook conceived the idea of inventing the automaton when his telephone company discontinued the service of acquainting subscribers with the time of day. The mechanism and operation of the device, though seemingly complicated, are comparatively simple when seen in action and explained.

First, the time in hours and minutes are dictated through a microphone in a sound-proof room.

The voice waves are recorded on a celluloid disk through the medium of a shutter and a special quartz-mercury light, of the inventor's design, which accurately records each modulation and inflection of the voice.

When the record is made the disk is developed through a process similar to the development of photographic film.

The developed disk containing the voice record is placed on the reproducing apparatus which is operated by an electric motor drawing its power supply from an ordinary electric light current.

The reproducer also contains another electric motor which is synchronized with the clock in the Naval observatory at Arlington. It, too, has the quartz-mercury tube light attachment and a shutter which is placed with minute holes in a pattern conforming to that of the recorded voice modulations on the disk.

The disk is fitted over the steel shutter which, when the device is set in operation, revolves at the rate of a revolution every three seconds. By means of the synchronized motor, the apparatus always is set at the correct time.

The quartz-mercury light, or the light that never goes out, as the inventor terms it, shines through the holes in the shutter and is intercepted by the voice modulations recorded on the disk. The pattern of the voice impulses recorded on the celluloid disk is imprinted on the photoelectric cells by the intercepted light. These cells transform the voice modulations and inflections into electric energy which passes through an amplifying set.

Projected Through Speaker
The voice current, amplified to the proper pitch, is projected through a speaker and into a celluloid tube connected with the transmitters of the telephone connections.

For instance, if it were 1:25 o'clock, the record would broadcast through the reproducer in this manner: "Correct time, 1:25 o'clock."

The first revolution of the shutter wheel, consuming three seconds, would tell the time and the next revolution would broadcast the advertisement.

Telephone companies all over the country soon will have an opportunity to add the device to their systems and its completion is heralded by such concerns as another step forward in the era of better service.

Short Talk by a Thoughtful Mother
An Indiana mother tells this: "We had nothing to compare with Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for coughs and colds. My little lad had trouble with his bronchial tubes from his third year, but since we started giving him Foley's Honey and Tar Compound we have been able to control it. We know there is nothing to compare with Foley's Honey and Tar Compound." The very name tells a story. Good also for croup (spasmodic) and troublesome night coughs. Ask for it. Sold everywhere.—Ad.

Passed Up!

By ROE FULKERSON

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO MADE MEN LIKE HER

© 1929 by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST:

Betty Brown tries to make her living dancing, as this is the only thing she knows when the death of her parents leaves her destitute. She attracts several men, only to be insulted by them. Her oldest friend, George Harris, asks her to stay away from his place of business after it is published that two men fought over her outside of a night club where she danced. Andy Adair, Harry Ford and a few others think the affair a joke, although it cost her her position. She attends a petting party, and drinks for the second time in her life. Andy takes her home from the party, and then out in his car the next night.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXI

"What you suggest will never happen, Andy," said Betty, not unkindly. She was surprised she could discuss such a thing with a man.

"I am not so sure!" Andy returned, doggedly. "We are entitled to our happiness. Whose business is it what you do? You have been a good girl ever since you have been dancing, and what has it gotten you? One cheap theatrical manager dropped you off his list of attractions because you were good. A vaudeville comedian broke an arrangement to take you as a dancing partner because you were too particular. You lost your job at the Iron Door because you wouldn't take Dumbert as a sugar daddy."

"What's it getting you?" he demanded, fiercely. "You know me and you like me. You have known me ever since I was a boy. You know darned well I wouldn't ditch you in time of trouble. You aren't to blame because you have no other way of making a living except by dancing. I'm not to blame because my people never let me work."

"That three thousand a year I can have as long as I live if I don't give the governor any trouble. Mother takes care of the car she gave me."

"I'd be a lot better off, and happier, and drink less, if I had you to spend my time with. You'd be a lot better off if you had me to go around with and all that. What's the difference between spending ten dollars sitting around a rotten night club with you, and sipping up a lot of booze, and giving you the ten dollars to pay rent on a nice little flat, where we can sit around evenings and lay off the booze?"

"Now, wait a minute! You love me, don't you?" He held her close to him and kissed the wrinkles which had come into her brow.

"You know I love you like the very devil. I'm never so happy as when I'm with you. Couldn't we have wonderful times, spending every day just like we have spent today? Just drive around in the car and let the breeze slip off into quiet little places to go bathing or fishing. Pack a lunch and picnic! You'll have lots of time to practice your dancing, and then you'll show me all the new steps which I love."

"Plenty of dresses and plenty of kisses! A nice little place of your own, with a world of love shut in and a world of strife shut out. Why, honey, it would be just heaven! The reason I didn't want you to drink tonight was because I wanted you to decide when you were yourself."

"Oh, Andy, I mustn't!"

"Who is there to say you mustn't? Who cares a darn whether you do or not, but me? Who cares a darn whether you starve or freeze, but me? It is just an old-fashioned inhibition you inherited from some of your ancestors who would have been equally shocked if they had seen you in dancing costume."

"Things are changing, Betty. We are living in a new world, with new standards. Let's snatch our happiness while we can, little sweetheart."

"But, Andy, it is wrong!"

"Is it any more wrong than for three men to demand everything you had in exchange for giving you a chance to make a living?"

"But, Andy, I'm not that kind of a girl!" she exclaimed. "Oh, I know how that sounds. But I just can't say anything else. There are kind of girls, and other girls who aren't that kind! I couldn't live like that!"

"Don't decide too hastily." He spoke a bit coldly. "You haven't got enough friends to afford to lose any."

"But, Andy, don't you see that if that is the price you put on your friendship, you put yourself in the same class with those other men?"

"I'm not a bit like them, or I would have got you drunk last night," he cried, heatedly. "I won't have you putting me in the class with those cheap libertines!"

"Oh, Andy, please don't get mad! I hardly know what I'm saying of course you aren't a bit like them. I love you!" She put her arms around his neck and kissed him.

"That's the girl! I knew you didn't mean that. And you haven't meant one-half the things you said before. I'm going with you tomorrow and find a nice little apartment, all furnished real cute. You're going to move there and live like a little darling and let me carry one of the keys."

Ahead of her she saw the headlights of a car.

"If you want to pretend property, you can get some kind of part-time job, or one assisting some dancing teacher. We will be happy as two bugs in the same rug."

He did not wait for her answer, but put his arms around her and kissed her wildly. She struggled a bit, and tried to protest, but each time he kissed her. At last, he sat with his lips an inch from hers, and each time her lips parted for a word he silenced her with kisses.

He sat thus until the tension was broken by both of them laughing at the absurdity. Betty had not consented to his plan. She had been smothered with words and kisses until she was too confused to know her own mind. This man had been kinder to her than any man she had ever met, except possibly George Harris, who had asked her not to come to his restaurant. She had been ordered out of her room. The whole world seemed to be conspiring to make her unhappy, except this one man.

Had he asked her to marry him, Betty would have consented in an instant; but this was different. Yet she loved him so much she alternately clutched at what seemed to promise happiness, and then drew hastily away from it.

Andy broke in on her meditations.

"I promised not to take another drink tonight, and I won't if you insist, but I think we are entitled to celebrate! Let's have another!"

"Oh, I don't care what happens!" exclaimed Betty, desperately.

"That's the ticket. That's my sweetheart!" He kissed her and poured the drink into a cup which formed the lower part of his flask.

"Now drink it all at one swallow. When it's down, breathe through your nose for a moment, and it won't choke you. Betty followed his directions. A moment later she opened her mouth and the fiery liquor burned her throat and mouth. She sputtered and shuddered, but Andy did not notice, as he drank his own.

"Hurray for the new family! Hurray for happiness for two lone people!" He held her close, and covered her lips and face with kisses.

"But, Andy, I haven't consented!" protested Betty, feebly.

"But you have!" he insisted.

"Oh, what difference does it make?" cried Betty. "Who cares what I do? Who has any interest in me, anyway?"

"I do," Andy kissed her again. "Now, let's get home, and tomorrow these two birds will start hunting a nest."

Betty realized he was hurrying home lest she give him a positive refusal. She had half-way committed herself to his plan, but she was reckless. She could decide after she was safely at home, and tell him in the morning! She did not give her own consent to his plan, by any means, but did not want to start the argument all over again. Andy seemed so boyishly happy that she was loath to disappoint him.

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO MADE MEN LIKE HER

Ahead of her she saw the headlights of a car.

READ THIS FIRST:

Betty Brown tries to make her living dancing, as this is the only thing she knows when the death of her parents leaves her destitute. She attracts several men, only to be insulted by them. Her oldest friend, George Harris, asks her to stay away from his place of business after it is published that two men fought over her outside of a night club where she danced. Andy Adair, Harry Ford and a few others think the affair a joke, although it cost her her position. She attends a petting party, and drinks for the second time in her life. Andy takes her home from the party, and then out in his car the next night.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXI

"What you suggest will never happen, Andy," said Betty, not unkindly. She was surprised she could discuss such a thing with a man.

"I am not so sure!" Andy returned, doggedly. "We are entitled to our happiness. Whose business is it what you do? You have been a good girl ever since you have been dancing, and what has it gotten you? One cheap theatre manager dropped you off his list of attractions because you were good. A vaudeville comedian broke an arrangement to take you as a dancing partner because you were too particular. You lost your job at the Iron Door because you wouldn't take Daubert as a sugar daddy!"

"What's it getting you?" he demanded, fiercely. "You know me and you like me. You have known me ever since I was a boy. You know darned well I wouldn't ditch you in time of trouble. You aren't to blame because you have no other way of making a living except by dancing. I'm not to blame because my people never let me work."

"That three thousand a year I can have as long as I live if I don't give the governor any trouble. Mother takes care of the car she gave me."

"I'd be a lot better off, and happier, and drink less, if I had you to spend my time with. You'd be a lot better off if you had me to play around with and all that. What's the difference between spending ten dollars sitting around a rotten night club with you, and sipping up a lot of booze, and giving you the ten dollars to pay rent on a nice little flat, where we can sit around evenings and lay off the booze?"

"But, Andy—" "Now, wait a minute! You love me, don't you?" He held her close to him and kissed the wrinkles which had come into her brow. "You know I love you like the very devil. I'm never so happy as when I'm with you. Couldn't we have wonderful times, spending every day just like we have spent today? Just drive around in the car and enjoy the breeze. Slip off into quiet little places to go bathing or fishing. Pack a lunch and picnic! You'll have lots of time to practice your dancing, and then you'll show me all the new steps when I come."

"Plenty of dresses and plenty of kisses! A nice little place of your own, with a world of love shut in and a world of strife shut out! Why, honey, it would be just heaven! The reason I didn't want you to drink tonight was because I wanted you to decide when you were yourself."

"Oh, Andy, I mustn't!" "Who is there to say you mustn't? Who cares a darn whether you do or not, but me? Why, I care a darn whether you starve or freeze, but me? It is just an old-fashioned inhibition you inherited from some of your ancestors who they had seen you in dancing costume."

"Things are changing, Betty. We are living in a new world, with new standards. Let's snatch our happiness while we can, little sweetheart."

"But, Andy, it is wrong!" "Is it any more wrong than for three men to demand everything you had in exchange for giving you a chance to make a living?"

"But, Andy, I'm not that kind of a girl!" she exclaimed. "Oh, I know how that sounds, but I just can't say anything else. There are other kind of girls, but I know you didn't want that kind! I couldn't live like that!"

"Don't decide too hastily. He spoke a bit coldly. 'You haven't got enough friends to afford to lose any.'"

"But, Andy, don't you see that if that is the price you put on your friendship, you put yourself in the same class with those other men?"

"I'm not a bit like them, or I would have got you drunk last night," he cried, heatedly. "I won't have you putting me in the class with those cheap libertines!"

"Oh, Andy, please don't get mad! I hardly know what I'm saying. Of course you aren't a bit like them. I love you!" She put her arms around his neck and kissed him.

"That's the girl! I knew you didn't mean that. And you haven't meant one-half the things you said before. I'm going with you tomorrow and find a nice little apartment, all furnished real cute. You're going to move there and live like a little darling and let me carry one of the keys."

"If you want to pretend propriety, you can get some kind of part-time job, or one assisting some dancing teacher. We will be happy as two bugs in the same rug."

He did not wait for her answer, but put his arms around her and kissed her wildly. She struggled a bit, and tried to protest, but each time he kissed her. At last, he sat with his lips an inch from hers, and each time her lips parted for a word he silenced her with kisses. He sat thus until the tension was broken by both of them laughing at the absurdity. Betty had not consented to his plan. She had been smothered with words and kisses until she was too confused to know her own mind. This man had been kinder to her than any man she had ever met, except possibly George Harris, who had asked her not to come to his restaurant again. She had been ordered out of her room. The whole world seemed to be conspiring to make her unhappy, except this one man.

Had he asked her to marry him, Betty would have consented in an instant; but this was different. Yet she loved him so much she alternately clutched at what seemed to promise happiness, and then drew hastily away from it.

Andy broke in on her meditations.

"I promised not to take another drink tonight, and I won't if you insist, but I think we are entitled to celebrate! Let's have another!"

"Oh, I don't care what happens!" exclaimed Betty, desperately.

"That's the ticket. That's my sweetheart!" He kissed her and poured a drink into a cup which formed the lower part of his flask.

"Now drink it all at one swallow. When it's down, breathe through your nose for a moment, and I won't choke you."

Betty followed his directions. A moment later she opened her mouth and the fiery liquor burned her throat and mouth. She sputtered and shuddered, but Andy did not notice, as he drank his own.

"Hurray for the new family! Hurray for happiness for two lone some people!" He held her close, and covered her lips and face with kisses.

"But, Andy, I haven't consented!" protested Betty, feebly.

"But you have!" he insisted. "Oh, what difference does it make?" cried Betty. "Who cares what I do? Who has any interest in me, anyway?"

"I do!" Andy kissed her again. "Now, let's get home, and tomorrow these two birds will start hatching a nest."

Betty realized he was hurrying home lest she give him a positive refusal. She had half-way committed herself to his plan, but she was reckless. She could decide after she was safely at home, and tell him in the morning! She did not give her own consent to his plan, by any means, but did not want to start the argument all over again. Andy seemed so boyishly happy that she was loath to disappoint him.

They turned toward the main highway again, and were soon speeding down it. The hour was so late that there was almost no traffic, and the wind sang in their ears all conversation was impossible.

Betty rested her head on his shoulder and watched the road ahead. From time to time she dropped her eyes to the quivering scale of the speedometer as it rose to thirty-five, forty, forty-five and, after dancing a moment reached fifty. Ahead of her she saw the headlights of a car. Andy did not slacken his pace, as the road was simply wide for the two cars to pass at high speed.

She saw the driver of the other car throw up his hand to protect his eyes from the glare of Andy's headlights. For an instant she thought the two cars would crash, as the other man took much more than his half of the road.

Florence Turner, whose name recalls memories of the early flickers minus plot and sequence that fascinated early cinema fans, is back in the movies after a long absence. Florence is now playing in "Broadway," which is under production at the Universal plant in Hollywood. In the days before the producers learned the value of personal advertising for its stars, she was known as the "Vitagraph Girl" about the time that Mary Pickford was known to the nation as "Biograph Mary."

Barbara Tennant, another old flicker favorite, is also playing a part in "Broadway." She once worked for the now extinct Eclair and World companies.

Despite the acclaim that was given "Biograph Mary," Miss Turner was probably the original star actress of the pictures. She was always a competent performer and gave a good account of herself even under the handicaps of the profession in its infancy. She could tell an interesting story of the first pictures and perhaps, now that she has been resurrected from oblivion, she will be persuaded to do that very thing by some ambitious magazine editor.

Miss Turner comes back to a picture world turned topsy-turvy only recently by the innovation of the talkies. The "silent" drama as she knew it in the old Vitagraph days, has passed. In its stead she finds ability to speak on the stage a qualification of the present crop of stars.

And not only ability to talk but ability to sing, as well, appears to be a recommendation for these movies gone mad. Samuel Goldwyn is making tests of Vilma Banky's singing voice with the possibility of having her sing the theme song of "This Is Heaven." She has a pleasing mezzo-soprano voice, with definite singing possibilities. Goldwyn wants her to sing only the one title song, which will be used in Ronald Colman, however, finds the "talkies" not near as difficult as the "fighties." Colman suffered a broken rib, sprained knee and multiple bruises last week while filming fight sequences of the English crook melodrama "Bulldog Drummond." He was hurt during the battle royal which is said to have been the most vivid and realistic screen fist battle since the classic fight in "The Spotters" a number of years ago. Lilyan Tashman, Montagu Love and Jean Bennett support Colman in the picture.

H. C. Witwer, magazine humorist, has signed to write thirteen stories for short subjects to be filmed by Radio Pictures this year.

TIERNY FINED BUT WILL APPEAL CASE

Overruling a motion for a new trial, Probate Judge S. C. Wright fined Frank Tierny, 28, Dayton, O., $200 and costs and imposed a sentence of thirty days in the County Jail Tuesday after convicting him ten days ago of operating an auto while intoxicated.

Previously Judge Wright had imposed a fine of $50 and costs upon a woman registering as Regina Tierny, 32, his wife, who pleaded guilty to intoxication. The court deferred execution of the sentence against Tierny when he furnished $250 appeal bond.

The man and his wife were arrested by county authorities after they had driven their auto into a ditch off the Dayton-Xenia Pike just west of Beaver Creek High School the night of February 24.

All Scouts will bring their own plate and cup. Plenty of chicken and other good things are promised.

PATROL LEADERS' SCHOOL FINISHED

Members of the graduating class will receive their diplomas at a banquet to be held at a later date.

Do you enjoy your food?

If you do not enjoy your food it is a true sign that you are losing your appetite. And when your appetite is "gone" it means you haven't the resistance to ward off disease. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. General weakness pervades the entire body. There is no desire to work or play.

Rich, red, blood builds and sustains

Your physician will tell you that lowered vitality is the result of an insufficient supply of red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that nourish and sustain the body.

When you get your red blood cells back up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, rheumatism, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again; sleep soundly; solid flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong; and your nerves become steady.
